Heavy Gun-Fire Across Channel Heard in Southeastern England Today—Machine-Gun Fire in Air Believed To Be From Royal Air Force Planes Driving Off German Craft in Channel.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN, May 25—The German "iron ring" around the Allied troops in France and Belgium has "definitely been closed," and the important channel city of Calais encircled, the German high command announced today.

Military quarters said that advance Nazi units had already entered Calais, within 20 miles of British soil and only five minutes by plane from Dover.

A communique issued by the high command said: "In the south between Valenciennes and Viemy, the German attack on both sides of Douai is progressing in a north-westwardly direction.

"Viemy Ridge has been taken. Boulogne has been taken, and Calais has been encircled."

LONDON, May 25—Heavy gun-fire across the English Channel was heard off the southeastern coast of England today. Machine-gun fire in the air off the coast was also reported. It was believed that Royal Air Force planes were driving off German craft over the channel.

An air ministry communique said that at least three enemy tanks were set afire and others put out of action today in a series of Royal Air Force attacks on German units near the channel coast. German oil depots in Rotterdam again were attacked by British bombers and a group of heavy British war planes made bombing forays over and behind the battlefield throughout the night.

The communique added: During one of the Royal Air Force attacks on German units along the Dutch coast, British bombers struck and sank a Nazi torpedo boat.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 25—Three Royal Air Force officers were shot and wounded today when thought by air-port guards to be enemy parachutists. The three British flyers were driving in an automobile past an airdrome in Ulster, when the guards opened fire.

LONDON, May 25—A German bombing raid was conducted in the county of Essex today, resulting in death to a flock of chickens according to formal air ministry announcements.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, May 25—Fifteen days of "blitz war" today brought Reichsfuehrer Hitler and the massive German army to the country of England, according to German military spokesmen. The sweeping gains of the last two weeks have been achieved with a minimum of Nazi losses.

German officers pointed to the morale of their troops and the splendor of their equipment as proof of their contention that to all intents and purposes the Allies seem already to have lost the war.

In the west "the battle of the century" is still raging around the German "iron ring."

According to Nazi spokesmen, "final spikes" are being driven by German troops deeper into the body of the trapped British, French and Belgian soldiers.

PARIS, May 25—An official French spokesman today denied a Berlin claim that German troops had entered the highly-strategic channel port of Calais. "Calais is still in our hands, as well as Boulogne," he said. "We are holding the Germans at Saint Omer as well."

The Germans claimed Boulogne and St. Omer yesterday, and declared it was in a thrust from St. Omer that Nazi troops were able to penetrate Calais.

France's strongest troops today were battling slowly north behind a blazing artillery barrage in the Arras-Cambrai-Valenciennes sector as the French war ministry reported consolidation of the Allied positions on the Somme River front.

Today's official communique reported: "Since yesterday evening we have been consolidating our positions on the Somme, and during these operations we made a certain number of prisoners. During the night there was nothing to report along the whole front."

LONDON, May 25—The first serious Nazi bomb attack upon English soil was revealed today by the British Air Ministry and the Ministry for Home Security in an announcement that eight civilians had been injured last night by German sky raiders.

The German bombers dropped their deadly cargoes over the North Riding area of Yorkshire, 200 miles north of London, and in the East Anglia district, consisting of the three counties of Essex, Suffolk and Norfolk, north-east of the British capital.

Eight civilians were injured—three requiring hospitalization—in the North Riding attack. There were no casualties in the raids upon East Anglia.

To Strengthen Public Service Journalism

State College, May 25—Pennsylvania's newspaper publishers mustered their forces today for a strengthening of "public service journalism" in the face of European war crisis.

After opening the session, highlighted by a warning from Dr. A. Laudon, Netherlands minister from the U. S. to "be prepared" publishers attending the annual Pennsylvania Press Conference adopted the following resolution:

"A new opportunity for public service journalism has arisen out of the perilous European war situation. Editors and publishers are therefore urged to make an unemotional account of the state of the world and the nation and look ahead with calmness, lest the American people lose faith in our democratic principles."

Rejects White's Invitation

Harrisburg, May 25—Governor Arthur H. James today rejected an invitation from William Allen White, Kansas editor, to join a committee whose purpose is to aid the Allies with the nation's economic and moral weight.

Instead the Governor asked White to join in a campaign to keep congress in session indefinitely during the international crisis.

"I can see no surer road to war than by taking sides in a foreign conflagration," the Governor wrote White. "The path to peace and the path to the preservation of American liberty are one and the same; and that path is strict adherence to the republican form of government under the American constitution."

Miss Dorothy Bilger Injured in Motorcycle Crash

Miss Dorothy Bilger, 18, 512 Bath street, is in the Wagner Hospital with a possible fracture of the right hip. The injury was sustained last evening when Miss Bilger and Norman Myers, Tacoma, were riding down the Bristol Pike on a motorcycle.

According to Mrs. Bilger, mother of the injured girl, a motorist, whose name she was unable to give, pulled out in front of the Myers motorcycle in front of the post office at Crofton.

The bumper of the car caught the front fork of the motorcycle and threw it out of control. Myers and Miss Bilger were thrown off. Myers suffered bruises of the right knee. The injured were taken to the Wagner Hospital in the ambulance of the Bucks County Rescue Squad.

The accident occurred at about 7.15 o'clock.

DISSENSION OVER TYPE OF LIGHT FOR TRAFFIC

Morrisville Councilmen Desire Overhead Light; State Deems Otherwise

PERMIT IS ISSUED

MORRISVILLE, May 25—The type of traffic light or lights to be placed at Delmore avenue and East Bridge street is a bit of a question in Morrisville borough.

The State Highway has issued a permit for the borough to erect four posts—one on each corner of the intersection, but local officials are trying to persuade the State authorities to change the permit to one for the overhead type.

The light of the Pennsylvania avenue-Bridge street corner, an overhead one, has proved a great success, local police claim. State officials originally sent a permit to Council for this to be of the corner post type, but Council persuaded them to change their permit to the overhead light. In the present case, the State says the corners are not adjacent and demand the corner posts.

The borough request for a change of permit to the overhead traffic light is now in Harrisburg and word is expected shortly as to the State's verdict. If Council receives a reply demanding that four corner posts be erected if a light is installed, it is questionable if any light would be installed there.

No permit for the South Pennsylvania-Philadelphia avenue light has been received yet but it is believed to have been tentatively granted.

ANNEXING FROZEN WASTES

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has returned from his third expedition to the Antarctic and reports that he charted 900 miles of additional coast land forming a plateau south and west of Cape Horn. This land, the nation is told, has been the quest of explorers for 158 years and he is naturally proud of his achievement.

The crew of 53 men, including scientists and aviators, will remain in Little America while Admiral Byrd directs their movements from Washington. Weather conditions were not favorable for flying during the greater part of the time, and the veteran explorer was unable to locate the south magnetic pole.

There is no secret about the fact that Admiral Byrd was hurried down to Antarctica for the purpose of establishing the claim of the United States to large areas of the frozen wastes which other countries were preparing to annex.

The question therefore arises as to why the United States should wish to establish any such claim. It is all very well for those who love a life of adventure to seek out the remote places of the earth, where the foot of man has never trod, but for all practical purposes it is not easy to understand why the government of the United States should be taking on additional territorial headaches.

This country has been trying to get rid of the Philippines, only to find that the Filipinos, having won partial freedom, do not want to be free. It might be too bold to say that Little America can never have any real value, but it is becoming hard enough to protect what this nation already has.

LESS GARRULOUS

The World of Tomorrow idea is wisely soft-pedaled in the New York Fair which re-opened a few days ago after numerous "labor" difficulties which, however, were hardly mentioned by the Gotham press and not at all over the radio.

The new management, it is reported, gets down to earth and wants to see the show pervaded with the spirit of enjoying the Here and Now that is found at county fairs. There will be fewer cutaways and gardenias, less accent on streamlining, a bigger play to the ordinary American on a holiday.

It takes a second season of an enterprise as complicated and ambitious as a great fair to iron out the mistakes of the first. One is corrected by dropping the admission to 50 cents, on the well-established theory that there are more than half again as many people with a half-dollar to spend than with 75 cents. Another sign of the times is a 5-and-10 restaurant, though gourmets will not be neglected in the tonier establishments. The fictitious "dollar dog" did more than any other legend to hurt last year's show. All this year's publicity is aimed at living it down.

Otherwise, the fair has fewer foreign exhibits, somewhat enlarged industrial displays, which were a big attraction last summer, and more activity on the amusement side. "A little smaller, more realistic, less garrulous and probably more appealing," is the verdict of The New Yorker after a preview. Perhaps the war works as a damper on the holiday spirit everywhere, but by the same token millions may be induced to try to forget it at such playgrounds as the one in Flushing. With the tendency away from formality and a phony austerity, a better time should be had by most.

TITAN TOWER" by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

Story So Far

Drawn together as they aid accident victim Titan Tower, new skyscraper, Nurse Linda Morton and Dr. Bill Blaine sense mutual affection. With memories of her love for late Airman Mike Morton still warm, however, Linda feels very mixed emotions as she day-dreams of possible romance with the debonaire young medic. After her harrowing roof-top experience, Linda returns home, unnerved. Her mind goes back to that tragic night when Mike was killed in a crash. After his death, no word of sympathy came for Linda from Mike's wealthy parents who disapproved of her marriage. So, when Mickey was born, she did not let them know. Linda's reverie is interrupted by the arrival of her friends, naive Janice Marberry and sophisticated Josephine Monroe. Speaking of the accident, Linda asks if they know Dr. Blaine. She learns from Jo he is in the Social Register and his father owns Titan Tower. The matchmaking Jo detects that Linda is more than professionally interested in Bill and urges her to "play single."

Men like Bill Blaine are interested in GIRLS, not mothers." Linda says she will never deny Mickey but, later that night, she is torn between love for her son and a young woman's yearning for romance. Next day, at luncheon, Linda goes up to the roof garden hoping to meet Bill. He is not there but pleasant-faced Steve Hubbard is. He asks Linda if the chair he is sitting in is taken. Thinking it is the old approach, she coldly replies, "Yes, you seem to have taken it." But she cannot help but smile when he comes back with, "You should post signs to keep out the riff-raff."

CHAPTER TEN

"You'll have to forgive me," he said, and Linda noted for the first time that his voice, low and well modulated, had laughter in it like his face. "This is my first trip to Palm Beach and I guess the altitude sort of got me. The name is Steve Hubbard; I'm from the other side of the tracks, way down in the foundations of this here upright city."

"Forgiven," Linda smiled. "The name is Linda Morton. Upper crust Linda of the twenty-fifth floor."
Steve had dragged his chair out from behind the palm, and Linda had seen then that the neat brown suit was covered by a white smock of some kind.

"Nurse?" Steve asked.
"Sort of," Linda nodded. "Doctor?"

Steve's grin broadened at that one.
"Well, yes and no," he answered. "You might say I'm a sort of specialist. I guess I have the biggest practice in Titan Tower—and the biggest patients. Variety of complaints from bad pumps to leaking valves."

"Oh," Linda said, understandingly, "Heart."

"Funny," said Steve, "you took the thought right out of my mind. I was beginning to feel the symptoms."

HE IS fresh, Linda thought, and felt the color rush to her face. But fresh in a way that it was difficult to resent. She looked at her watch and said, "It's lovely here, but my hour's up. If I don't get back to my job, I may not have any."

As she walked toward the stairs Steve felt into step beside her. She felt that he was tall, not like Bill Blaine, but tall enough.
"Goodbye," Steve said. "Do you get down to—I should say 'up to'—Palm Beach often?"

"Quite often," Linda smiled, "if you count just once. This is my first trip—no pleasure."

"Maybe," said Steve, "we'll meet again."

Whether they did or not was not in Linda's mind as she went back to Dr. Thorpe's office. Steve was forgotten before she had taken ten steps down the stairs. In his place were two feelings of emptiness. She had not eaten, and—more important—she had not seen Dr. Blaine.

Linda was literally up to her elbows in bills she was getting out for Dr. Thorpe several hours later. She was tired and frowning and felt she must have looked at her very worst when the door opened and she glanced up to see the outline of a tall man entering.

"Will you be seated just a moment, please?" she asked, meaning to finish a difficult total before talking to the patient.

Standing in front of her desk and smiling down at her, with an amused twinkle in his eyes, was Bill Blaine.

"Hello, there," he said. Just that. "Oh," said Linda, "hello."

Why, she moaned inwardly, couldn't she command more than a stupid stage whisper?

"Well," said Dr. Blaine, "this is a pleasant surprise, Miss Morton—it is Miss Morton, isn't it?"

"Yes," Linda said, letting a half-truth do for the whole. Well, the "Morton" part was right, anyway.

"I just dropped in to see Dr. Thorpe on a professional matter," Dr. Blaine explained, as though an explanation were needed. "You know, I wouldn't have known your name, after all your fine work up here yesterday, if it hadn't appeared in the papers. You're quite the leading lady of Titan Tower today."

"Thank you Dr. Blaine," Linda said. "I'll tell Dr. Thorpe you're here."

"No, don't bother," Blaine said quickly. "It's not vitally important. I'll just walk in on him later—that is, if you're not too busy to be pestered for a few minutes."

"Pestered?" Linda's eyebrows arched, in a pattern Bill Blaine decided was plenty effective.

"Well," he went on, "I haven't had a chance to thank you adequately for everything you did to help Dr. Renquist and me up there yesterday. And it seems that this chance visit has given me just the right opportunity. I know our poor friend of the accident would want me to thank you, too."

"That's very generous of you, doctor," Linda said. "I'm afraid you're over-emphasizing my part. I just did a nurse's job, that's all."

Why was it all so silly and stilted and formal, Linda asked herself. This wasn't the way she had pictured it, at all.

Why couldn't he say: "Lin, you were swell!" and why couldn't she rush to him and say: "I'd do it again—any place, hanging from a sky-hook, even—to be near you."

I know now, she told herself, that that's the way I feel. But things just don't happen that way, I guess.

Dr. Blaine said:

"We're all very proud of you."
Dr. Blaine thought: "Boy! She's lovelier than I thought even yesterday. Why did it take me so long to find out she was in Thorpe's office?"

Linda wasn't psychic, but at that exact moment, as though she had read his thoughts, the color mounted in her already flushed face. Blaine noticed it.

"Say, young lady," he commented, "looks like you've had a touch of

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"King of the Lumberjacks," starring John Payne and Gloria Dickson, which opens today at the Grand Theatre, is one of the lustiest, blood-thrilling dramas to come from the cinema center in many a day.

Mae West and W. C. Fields, two of the most celebrated figures in the entertainment world, come to the Grand Theatre, Sunday, in "My Little Chickadee." Heralded as one of the outstanding screen combinations of all time, the curvaceous actress and the flaming-nosed funster blend their colorful personalities in a rip-snorting comedy of frontier days.

BRISTOL THEATRE

"The Farmer's Daughter" reversed the field and came to town last night to delight audiences at the Bristol Theatre. Featuring the effervescent Martha Raye, Charlie Ruggles, Richard Denning, William Frawley, Gertrude Michael and Betty McLaughlin, the pastoral party proved to be gay, gingham goings-on.

In Tex Ritter's current outdoor feature, "Pals of the Silver Sage," at the Bristol Theatre, there is plenty of action, suspense, gun battles and fast and furious riding to please any outdoor fan. And what's more, the studio has inserted a clever youngster, Sugar Dawn, already a star in her own right in the rodeo field.

Edgar Bergen's "hospital act" with Charlie McCarthy is included in Universal's "Charlie McCarthy, Detective."

Grand Jury Inspects Various Institutions

DOYLESTOWN, May 25—Members of the Grand Jury for May term of Bucks County criminal court completed their work for the term yesterday when they inspected the county buildings.

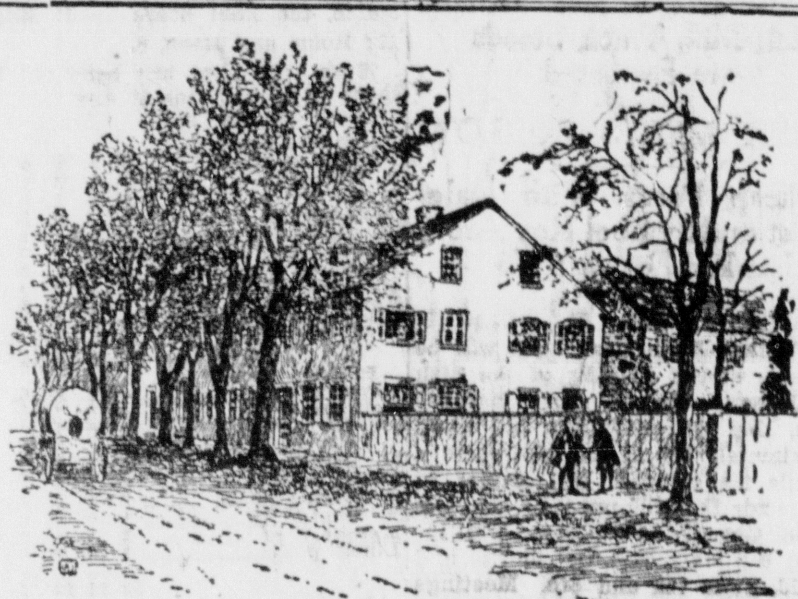

In filing their report the jury highly praised the management of the Bucks County Home and the Bucks County Prison for the excellent manner in which both institutions are being conducted.

"At the County Home we found everything satisfactory, sanitary and a homelike appearance," the report set forth. The report recommended new uniforms for the guards at the Bucks County Prison and a modern sink in the prison kitchen.

The Grand Jury reported a crowded condition in the Bucks County Administration Building and advise that the second floor be enlarged by closing the open space between the first and second floors. Additional clerks for the office of the Superintendent of Schools were also recommended.

The jury further recommended that a pavement be placed along Main street, running parallel with the Court building to connect on Court street with the present Administration Building.

Some offices in the Court House the Grand Jury found to be in an overcrowded condition. They advised some immediate action be taken to relieve the congestion. The lighting system in certain parts of the Court building was

WRESTLING SEASON WILL OPEN HERE ON MEMORIAL DAY

Slam-Bang Card Certain To Give Wrestling Fans
Many Thrills

BIG MAIN FEATURE

Michele Leone, Italian Champion, to Battle Juan
Olaguivel

The summer wrestling season opens at Bristol Stadium, Memorial Day, Thursday, May 30th, with a slam-bang card certain to give wrestling fans all the thrills and action they crave.

The main event, which will be one fall to a finish, has been signed and features Michele Leone, official Italian champion, matched with Juan Olaguivel, Spanish woodchopper. Promoters are now working on the supporting card and the names of the participants will be announced in a day or so.

Michele Leone rates as the best Italian wrestler to come to this country from Italy in years. He is 26 years old, weighs 215 pounds, and was selected from hundreds of wrestlers by the Italian Federation of Wrestling to make the trip to this country and make his bid for the world's mat title. Incidentally, the title has never been held by an Italian wrestler for several years and did not join pro wrestlers until his mentors were satisfied that Leone could hold his own with Europe's best matmen.

In open tournament competition he won several of Europe's important tournaments, finally winning the Bologna tournament—most important meet in Europe. On that occasion, Leone defeated representatives of 21 nations to win the official title of champion. He is a strong, fast, clever grappler, a man who knows every angle of the game and, since he has been here, boasts of over 200 victories. For the opening of the season Leone is given real competition in Juan Olaguivel, Spain's mat representative and one of the most colorful wrestlers in the country.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, May 25—Smacking the pill for fourteen solid hits, the Diamond team again got into the win column, trotting the Tullytown nine, 11-0, for the latter's first defeat in the Bristol Suburban League.

PENN A. C. NINE TO PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Tomorrow the well-known Penn A. C. baseball club will play the Landreth nine, and the game should be an interesting one, for on the two occasions that these teams have met, each has won a game.

The locals were defeated, 4-3, the first time, but won the second game, 2-1, with Howard Black on the mound. Tomorrow Black will twirl again and will be opposed by either Simon or Grindle, so a pitchers' battle is in prospect. An old local favorite, Bill Harwi, who caught several years for the "Farmers," will be behind the plate for the Penn A. C., which will lead to the rivalry.

The Penn A. C. has an enviable reputation, last year winning 18 and only losing six, and their record this year is also very good. The local boys have won their last four games and are out to make it five straight.

The game time is three o'clock.
